Care and Connect

Acts of mercy or good works mark Christians as God’s people and are the fruit of salvation (Titus 3: 4-8). Apart from showing that someone is being made new by the Gospel (James 2: 14-20), good works witness to a broken world of God’s majesty (1 Peter 2:12).

ANGLICARE Sydney wants to encourage all Christians to do the good works that God has prepared for them, as they enjoy relationship with Him. In this context, ANGLICARE Sydney is committed to supporting the Sydney Anglican Diocese in caring for the community and resourcing local churches for acts of loving service.

This booklet has been developed as a resource to direct local churches to access points for local services in their Mission Area and to educate them about the pressing needs in the area of Mental Health.

In 2007 the Australian Government’s Report on the National Survey of Mental Health and Wellbeing found that every year one in five Australians experience some form of mental illness, across the full spectrum of need. This is startling, and we must be ready to respond appropriately to needs among us.

ANGLICARE’s services are designed to be holistic and therefore many services offer scope to support mental health needs.

Inside you will also find information on public health access points relating to mental health, with ANGLICARE counselling services and local doctors being key starting points.

ANGLICARE’s partnerships with local churches are fundamental to helping them better understand peoples’ needs and to love them well. It is my prayer that by telling the Gospel and doing good works we will, together glorify Jesus.

Peter Kell
CEO, ANGLICARE Sydney

Are you eligible?

Some services, such as emergency relief, disability and carer services and Chesalon community services are limited to particular Local Government Areas (LGAs).

This directory indicates the services with eligibility restrictions and lists any eligible LGAs within each Mission Area.

Government: Area Health Services

As well as listing ANGLICARE services, this directory also lists available Government health services in each Mission Area. The Sydney Diocese is covered by the four NSW Government Area Health Services:

- Northern Sydney/Central Coast
- South Eastern Sydney/Illawarra
- Sydney South West
- Sydney West

The Area Health Services run a number of facilities and area wide services that assist people with disabilities, physical injuries or illness and mental health. Some Area Health Services also offer programs targeted at specific groups and communities such as youth and migrants.

Services provided by Area Health Services include:

- Hospitals
- Community health centres/clinics
- Mental health
- Drug and alcohol support
- Youth health facilities
- Carer support

Recognising Mental Illness

Mental illness is a common experience, with 45% of all Australians aged 16 to 85 experiencing a mental disorder at some point in their lives. The most common mental illnesses are anxiety disorders and affective disorders (e.g. depression).

Anxiety Disorders

There are many types of anxiety disorders, marked by a range of symptoms. The five most common anxiety disorders are:

- Generalised Anxiety Disorder
Feeling anxious most of the time, over a long period of time (6 months or more).
- Phobia
Feeling fearful of and going to great length to avoid a particular object or situation.
- Obsessive Compulsive Disorder
Ongoing intrusive thoughts or fears that cause anxiety and are relieved by certain behaviours (e.g. a fear of germs can lead to constant washing of hands and clothes)
- Post Traumatic Stress Disorder
Stress and anxiety associated with a traumatic event (e.g. assault, an accident) from one month after the event has occurred.
- Panic Disorder
Panic attacks, or intense and uncontrollable feelings of anxiety, often accompanied by physical symptoms. Sometimes people experiencing a panic attack think they are about to die.

Affective Disorders

Depression and other affective disorders are also marked by a range of symptoms. Affective disorders include:

- Major Depressive Disorder
Symptoms include a low mood, sleep disturbance or over sleeping, loss of energy, loss of interest and pleasure in usual activities. Symptoms are experienced most days for at least two weeks.
- Dysthymia
Symptoms are milder than major depressive disorder but this disorder lasts for a longer period (e.g. at least two years).
- Bipolar Disorder
Persons sometimes experience symptoms of depressive disorder and sometimes experience symptoms of mania (e.g. lots of energy, little need for sleep, difficulty focusing, irritability, losing touch with reality).

Australian Bureau of Statistics (2007), National Survey of Mental health and Wellbeing: Summary of Results, cat. no. 4326.0, ABS, Canberra.

- Psychotic Depression

Symptoms are similar to major depressive disorder but are accompanied by the person losing touch with reality and believing things that are false.

- Postpartum or Postnatal Depression

Symptoms are similar to other depressive disorders and are associated with childbirth. This form of depression can impact not only the mother but also the mother's relationship with her child.

Helping Someone with Mental Illness

Helpful ways to assist people with a mental illness include:

- Helping them find information online or at a community health centre
- Suggesting or assisting them to see a doctor, counsellor or health professional
- Accompanying them to their appointment or following them up after an appointment

ANGLICARE has a range of services available for people with a mental illness. Counsellors and social workers at ANGLICARE service sites can directly help or refer people to other services. Mental Health services can also be accessed through community health services and general practitioners.

Mental Health and Medicare

In 2006, The Australian Government introduced rebates for consultations with psychiatrists, clinical psychologists, psychologists, social workers and occupational therapists.

Any person with a mental disorder (including depression, anxiety or any other mental disorder) can qualify for these rebates with a referral from their General Practitioner (GP).

The Medicare rebate covers up to 12 individual sessions and 12 groups sessions in one calendar year with a mental health professional such as a psychologist or a social worker. There are also rebates available for some services with psychiatrists.

For more information on the Medicare rebate, contact beyondblue on 1300 22 4636 or www.beyondblue.org.au
